The editor of the Democrat, referring to the provision of the English bill that Kansas shall stay out of the Union till she has 95,420 inhabitants says we are obliged to infer that he is opposed to it lecause he notices fit repudiation by all parties of the free States. Yes, we can only infer, for he omits to say plainly whether he is opposed to it or not. If he wants to save folks the trouble of inferring, let him talk right out. He says, that, if we will turn hack to the flee of the Democrat of the date of the English bill, we shall see that he foretold that the provision in question would be repudiated in the free States. If he will indicate the number of A Quantum Lance to County here is a say within some selections. If he will indicate the number of a hardy adventurer who is without employment. The great country now opening there is deathed to populate was the natural resources of that region. Now that business is reviving here in the old States, and not business is reviving for the pointry of the natural resources of that region. Now that business is reviving for the epolicy of the natural resources of that region. Now that business is reviving for the top of the natural resources of that region. Now that business is reviving for the top only one ounity men seem to be on the eve of entering another prosperous period, when toil will be remarked for its bepeal exerts us. If he will indicate the number of the Hemocral, in which he put forth the prediction, we will tell our readers what we find there, but we can say now, that we were, or thought we were, in the daily habit of examining his paper at that time to see whether he would repudiate the limiting chase of the Kunass bill, and that we failed to see the shightest indication either that he himself would repudiate it or that Congress would or should in his opinion do so.
